Body Bruno I've been flying flags long before you and I don't intend to stop now. We still fly them when we drive and some of us had to make sacrifices in the rallies. Financially and family time sacrifice and now I am at a point where what little money I do have is the gas for work man. We all pull up when we can but it isn't possible for some who have to support themselves

Body Some of you? Do you think I haven't had to make sacrifices? I'm spending money out of my savings for this right now. I have skipped out on so much work for this.

Body Okay you're not wrong Bruno but some people don't have to option to skip work. Its easier when you're your own boss...

Body Bruh I'm out of savings because of rent... if I had it I'd go believe me. But I have to make sure I have a home and a truck and gas

Body Bruno I told you today that I wouldn't have came if I had work because if I had work money is more important than this shit it might be fun doing it. But spending 40 to 50 bucks on diesel when you worked 1 day the whole week and you have insurance coming up and a truck repair bill you just paid makes it financially irresponsible to keep doing it.

Body @bruno_cua None of us here are done fighting for this country or fighting for Trump. Neither are millions of Americans that are still out there fighting too. There's gonna be a lot of people out there. We've all spent our time on the front lines lol, some more than others but everyone here has. But everyone's in different financial situations tho and we all gotta respect that. But we're not done and we're not giving up.
